First post says: Turkey's Erdogan called the United States Ambassador in Turkey and thousands of Turks came out to protest in front of the US Embassy

Second post: This is not Hollywood, this Libya the ground of rebels, confirmed news the US Consulate was burnt completely in Benghazi, God is Great, and hopefully the Consulate in Morocco.

I have been searching Arabic websites including some forums that are sometimes used by extremists and what I see mostly is reporting on the breaking news and events. I did not notice anything on the forum I looked at (Ana al-Muslim) any comments on the event only reporting including a note calling for the meeting today (already happened) at 4:00 pm at the US Embassy in Cairo and giving exact directions to the Embassy.

Going through readers' comments to the stories posted on news websites, I see a variety of responses spanning from conspiracy theories (that is what the Americans and Israelis are doing on purpose to hurt Arabs and Muslims, they financed the offensive movie) to those who condemn the attacks as "UnIslamic and barbaric especially the killing of an innocent human being."

I found one specific post intriguing, it was a reader's comment on the story on

Al-Arabiya, follows is exact translation:

Jabbar Khalil

An important statement

Few days ago I offered very precise and important information to German authorities about personalities who were officials in the Qaddafi regime and now work with Al-Qaida affiliated organizations to execute terrorist operations and explosions in Libya and outside it and I have offered them all proofing documentation that shows the veracity of the information, but unfortunately the German authorities retained all my communication equipment and personal belongings and threatened me personally if I tried to get in touch with any media or any other office that I will face retaliation and penalties including imprisonment or deportation and said to me do not forget you are in Germany and not in Libya."
